GUIDELINES FOR DESIGNING ASSESSMENT TASKS

- 1. Assignment: The assignment is the homework given to the students for completion either individually or in a group. Assignment is generally based on the concepts covered in the class and is directed towards developing reading/practising habits amongst the students and sharpening their analytic skills. Assignment may be based on a case, a review of a book or a movie or based on learning contract, thematic map, simulation or review based on field or industrial visit or may be based on writing of a journal, report, essay, paper, documentation, dossier writing etc. or management of an event or participation in an event.
- 2. Test (Surprise Test): In certain courses knowledge of students is tested through written tests. Students are assigned different questions and are evaluated on the basis of written test. Tests may be based on problems, algorithm, code, situation or multiple-choice questions (MCQ) as per the requirement of the course.
- 3. Blog Writing: Considering the requirement of the program and the course blog writing may be assigned as one of the non-graded academic task. Students should be encouraged to participate in this blog activity to improve their writing skills.
- 4. Design Problem/Studio Work: A design problem as an academic task is given to the students to develop and improve designing skills of the students. A well-defined design problem helps in bringing out imagination and creativity among the students which is an essential trait of a skilled person. It gives experiential learning to the students and makes students more logical and analytical. Every design problem will be evaluated on rubrics-based assessment based on different criteria and scales of assessment pattern.
- 5. Discussion Forum: Group threaded discussions help cultivate assertiveness among the students. Further through group discussions, students learn to carry an idea, think critically about the opportunities and challenges in a particular situation, appreciate the thoughts and ideas pondered by their peers and help increasing level of confidence. Threaded discussions also prepare students for job interviews. Group discussion may be based on a case, situation, news etc.
- 6. Portfolio: Wherever students are required to work creatively the students may be asked to make a portfolio of their work and the portfolio be evaluated on the basis of concept, creativity, innovation etc. Portfolios may be the graded ones depending upon the need of the program. Every portfolio is graded on the basis of rubrics.
- 7. Presentation: Presentations increase the level of confidence in the students. Presentations are generally based on cases, situations and assignments. Presentation can be individual or group based. It may be in the form of a seminar, public speaking, paper presentation, poster presentation etc. It helps in enhancing the knowledge, building confidence, enhancement of public speaking skills and in enhancement of analytic skills. Every presentation if graded will be evaluated on the basis of rubrics only.
- 8. Project: A project can be a live project, mini project, simulation-based project, and design project, project such as designing of website or creation of garments or a small working assignment termed as project. Students are expected to be foresighted, think critically and evaluate the situation in hand in totality. Through projects students learn to handle a situation and they learn to appreciate relative importance of different factors affecting the value of the project. Project as an academic task is a complete assignment which incorporates almost all the concepts studied in the class. If for accomplishment of any project lab work is the pre-requisite then lab work should be completed during normal working hours of the University.

- 9. Quiz: Quiz is usually designed as a set of MCQ-type questions which must be framed smartly in order to let student think about answering the same. The quiz questions will be the blended with some set of descriptive queries, some numerical based and some analytical MCQ type questions. Some questions may also be framed as designed for competitive exams like GATE, UGC-NET exams etc. Some questions based on some animated video clips may also be designed.
- 10. Open Book Examination: To remove rote learning and more superficial application of knowledge the questions will be devised for students to answer in a more analytical and critical way thus encouraging high order thinking skills. Questions will assess the student's ability of comprehension, interpretation, and application of knowledge. The questions are not directly asked from any source like textbooks, internet question banks, so the students will not be able to find the answers in the textbook but require referring to the books, notes and other reading material for concept clearing, references etc. The student will require a deep knowledge of the course content, organized notes and a systematic way to find content quickly.
- 11. Personal Learning Environment: This is a creative space for the students to explore and hone their ability to apply knowledge to create new content adding to their portfolio. The English student will do creative writing in the form of Poetry/ Short story / Blog/ Article Writing, the Psychology student will do a Documentary Analysis and write an article or attempt case writing. The liberal arts students will attempt from a wide range including Creative Writing/ Documentary Analysis/ Economic Analysis/ E-Magazine on Socially Relevant Issue/ Live project /Case study /Article Writing/ participate in Model United Nations/ Toastmaster Competition or any other creative activity approved by the faculty of that course. The evaluation will be on the originality, novelty and freshness in imagination of the idea and its presentation.
- 12. Term Paper: Term paper may be a short review research paper /field problem/case study. Students are required to gather information assimilate it, draw inferences and present are port. Students are evaluated on the basis of a written report. Following points must be kept in mind while preparation of the term paper:
- A sample list of topics of the term paper is suggested by the Master Subject Coordinator while creating the course on CU LMS. It is not an exhaustive list and the instructor can add, delete or modify the topics of term paper as per requirement.
 - The course Instructor must mention 15-20 topics for the term paper and the course instructor has the liberty to use those 15-20 topics for the whole class or add some new topics.
 - A particular term paper topic can be given in a group. Group size should not exceed 5 members with clarity of each member's role.
 - A term paper is to be allotted latest by the end of 4th week of teaching and should be due at least two weeks before the last day of classes.
 - Complete Term Paper should comprise of 1000-1500 words only.
 - The guidelines for writing term papers have been mentioned as follows:

GUIDELINES FOR WRITING A TERM PAPER (FOR STUDENTS)

A term paper is an innovative course specific activity to be completed by students as a minor research project. The students are required to gather; assimilate and analyze the data for a problem allotted by the teacher. A term paper is a task assigned to the student in the 4th week of the semester, the submission of which is due at least two weeks before the last day of classes. The procedure for writing such a Term Paper consists of the following steps:

1. Finding sources of materials:

The information related to the topic can be collected from various primary and secondary sources, depending upon the nature of the topic. For the secondary sources one can visit library, search books and various websites. Then start writing the material related to the topic of your term paper. One can make reference cards of these by placing these cards according to the topic. The references should be written in following format.

a) Article in a journal

Verma, R., Dogra, B. and Khari, N. (2007), Dainik Bhaskar-The Punjab Launch, Indian Journal of Marketing, Vol. XIV, No.2, pp. 21-34.

b) From book

Gautam Prashant (2007), Sustainable Tourism Development, Indus Publication: New Delhi, pp. 31-40.

c) From Web

Population of India. [Online] available at <http://www.indianchild.com/populationofindia.html> >accessed on 24.09.2008]

2. Gathering notes:

The student should scan through the sources collected, locate the useful material, and then make good notes of it, including quotes and information for footnotes so that you don't have to refer the sources again. One should take care in note-taking. The notes must be taken accurately so that it does not distort the author's meanings. One should collect only those things that will support the objective of your term paper, ignoring other facts or opinions.

3. Discussion with the teacher/among the group members:

Before going with the detailed writing one must discuss the topic along with the material collected with the teacher or with the peer group members through conversations so as to ensure that one is going on a right track.

4. Outlining the paper

The purpose of an outline is to help students think through the topic carefully and organize it logically before writing. Check the outline to make sure that the points covered flow logically from one to the other.

5. Writing the first draft

Start writing now, write as per the outline. Include an Introduction, a Body, and a Conclusion.

- Introduction (Tell what you are going to say)-State the thesis and the purpose of the term paper clearly. State the basic purpose of writing the paper along with the steps of approaching the topic. Explain briefly the major points to be covered in the paper.
- Body (Say it) - This is where one presents the arguments to support the thesis.
- Conclusion (Tell in the end what you've said)-Here one has to summarize the arguments. One should explain the reasons to support the particular conclusion.

6. Editing the paper

The first draft is ready at this stage so,

- a) Read it thoroughly, to be sure that the language is proper, and that the content flow is appropriate.
- b) Cross check spelling and grammatical errors.
- c) Cross check References, footnotes, and punctuation.
Make sure that the tables and graphs are in proper form and are self-explanatory

To opt for TPP, it is mandatory for the students to appear in AMCAT Test as and when scheduled for them. Moreover, a Career Planning Seminar is organised to give them insights on TPP and various other competitive courses available on the campus. The information about both the AMCAT and Career Planning Seminar is provided to students well in advance. Failure to appear in the AMCAT or the absence from Career Planning Seminar could result in the student being debarred from TPP. Such students are thus not permitted to opt for TPP. They can, however, select any other competitive course if they wish to.

The students are given sufficient time to pay the TPP fee. If a student fails to pay the TPP fee within the stipulated time, they have to pay a fine along with the fee, applicable on the date of payment as predefined by the management. No student is allowed to select TPP and pay the fee after this predefined window period. It is important to note that any partial payment for any of the courses does not allow a student to sit in the respective classes. Mock Interviews and AI-Enabled Mock Interviews:

Mock interviews are practice job interviews designed to simulate real interview scenarios. It is a safe and constructive environment for students to experience the interview process, receive valuable feedback, and improve their performance before facing actual employers. CMC provides a series of such opportunities to students to ensure maximum exposure. The majority of employers use AI interviewing technologies to employ more quickly and competently with little assistance from humans. A remote employment interview called an AI interview uses video technology as its main form of communication. During the interview, one can objectively examine the candidate's body language, facial expressions, and vocal emotions.

The machine learning-powered video interview and evaluation tool can produce a report on several aspects of the interview, such as how frequently the candidate grinned, whether their voice modulation changed, or how engaged they were with the interviewer. During the interview, the following skill sets are evaluated:

Social Skills - Positive Emotion, Composure, and confidence. These are judged based on the candidate's facial expressions and voice features.

Workplace Skills - Learning Attitude, Work Management, Stress Management, Communication Skills - These are based on the content that is spoken.

All are on a scale of 0-100. And the overall score is an average of the two categories.

Industry Exposure: CMC is establishing ties with reputable companies and organizations, facilitating industry exposure opportunities for students. These experiences allow them to gain insights into the professional world and foster valuable connections.

Competitive Exam Wing: By providing thorough training to crack various entrance exams, CMC helps open the gateway to a plethora of opportunities to attain dream goals
